Basic Detail Report

Pouch

Date
c. 1780

Primary Maker
Odawa or cultural relatives

Medium
Black-dyed deer skin, porcupine quills, sinew thread, vegetal dyes

Description
This pouch is made of black-dyed deer skin, porcupine quills, sinew thread, and vegetal dyes. The pouch is rectangular, with the shorter sides being the top and bottom of the pouch. On the front red beads line the edges, and on the long sides a wavy line of white beads is inside the red line. On the top of the pouch is a block of dyed porcupine quills, underneath is a double wavy line of white beads, followed by another block of dyed porcupine quills, and then a zigzag line of thread. In the center of the pouch is a horned underwater panther outlined in dyed porcupine quills and thread.

Dimensions
Overall: 8 × 2 × 10 1/2 in. (20.3 × 5.1 × 26.7 cm)