Description

Pipe made of clay and on shaft in black ink: “#10./C220”. Facing the smoker is a human figure that is leaning back and looking skyward. Any defining facial features have been worn away, but the eye impressions, nose, and ears are still discernable. The figure has a shirt, thick neck, small shoulders that go into two arms. The arms have decorative embellishments on the sides and hold something that is not chipped off. The body leads into the shaft of the pipe and has the same decorative incisions that the arms have.
