Basic Detail Report

Bowl

Date

c. 1450-1500

Primary Maker

Sikyatki

Medium

Clay, pigments

Description

Ancient Southwest pottery reached a pinnacle with the Sikyatki style with its exuberant color, meticulous polishing, and perfection of shape and decoration that distinguish the style from its antecedents. The bowl features a figure like a katsina, one of the Pueblo spirit beings who help to regulate the forces of nature, while the jar's design may refer in part to a bird. ceramic

Dimensions

Overall: $4 \frac{3}{4} \times 10 \text{ in.} (12.1 \times 25.4 \text{ cm})$