Women with Gladiolus Flowers in Berlin, NY

Date

c. 1920

Medium

Photographic print on heavy paper

Description

Three women stand outdoors next to a display of gladiolus flowers in pots.. The women wore flowered print aprons over white dresses and flowered print hats. The two women standing on the right and left hold bunches of the flowers. Another woman stands at the center of the rustic display stand. The flowers were grown at the Meadowvale Farms owned by Arthur Cowee in Berlin, Rensselaer County, New York. The farm grew to include 100-acres of fields in the early 1900s.
