Description

Image of a mill building in Titusville, New York near Poughkeepsie. The foundation is constructed of fieldstone with a clapboard structure on top. A wooden plank leads from the roadside to a porch on the front of the building. The door on the side facing the viewer has painted "Notice" on it. A window is on either side of this door, with some window panes missing from the window on the right. A door is in the second story. Protruding from the front of the building are two dormers above the second level. A house is in view in the background.
