Description

View of the Harness Shop along Main Street in Franklin, New York. The building has two storefronts. The entrance on the right has a sign for the harness shop above the door. Three windows are on the second floor. A large tree is in front of the building and a house is to the right on the next property. A side walk is on the left side of the building. The photo is likely taken from the drugstore that was across the street. The building still stands today and houses the American Legion.
