Description

Image is of a row of sugar maples that are tapped and have (mostly) covered sap buckets hanging on them. The row of trees is along a plowed road. A sap bucket cover is on the ground in the foreground. A structure is on the left. A white house is in the distance. Per Jane and Haskell Yancey: These trees belong to a neighbor and are along their fence line on Long Pond Road in Croghan, New York. Today, over 5000 Maple Trees are tapped and hung with buckets.
