Exterior view of a gambrel roof barn with large hinged doors on the side. A small dutch door is to the left of the double doors. The only window is a small one in the eaves on the end of the barn. The barn doors are painted in the style of barns located in this central New York state. A small outbuilding, perhaps for storage or for animal pens is to the left of the barn. The area outside the barn is fenced in with wire fencing. A man sits on top of a wooden fence post near the right corner of the barn. A water tower is in the background some distance from the property. The barn was located in Herkimer County, New York.
