Description

View of a an English barn with a gambrel roof. Double sliding doors are open on the long side of the barn and another pair are opposite these on the other side of the barn. Doors built like this enabled the farmers to drive into the barn, unload hay and drive out. A horse-drawn wagon of loose hay is inside the barn for unloading into the mow for storage. A man stands to the left of the horse inside the barn. Another horse team stands outside the barn on the right. A man holds the reins to this horse team. A third man is in front of the open door on the left. To the left side of the barn, a carriage is parked.;
