Medium

photographic print on heavy paper

Description

A woman stands next to a building holding a wash basin.

On her right is a horse harnessed and with blinders on. The building next to her is propped up on boards and pylons. The front portion on the left is open to the air, as it seems the wall was never completed or a door installed. Several pails, a lantern and a milk box are on the open porch of the building to the right. A house is beyond the woman and horse. The front of the house is obscured a large growth of ivy vines. A table and various other items are along a stone walkway in front of the house.
