Description

An aerial view of the Bartlett All Steel Scythe, Company in Rexleigh, New York. The factory complex is made up of several large buildings. The main building bears the name of the company and is constructed of large stone blocks. A large water cistern sits on top of the roof next to a large flag. Several men gather in front of the main building near an automobile. Two train cars are parked along the railroad tracks that run next to the factory buildings. A farmstead can be seen on the rolling hills in the background.
