

Beekeeping in a Backyard

Date

1890-1910

Medium

Photographic paper

Description

The bottom half of the print shows beekeeping equipment, namely movable frame hives. Twenty-four clusters of bee hives can be seen in the photo. A man stands to the center, right holding a bee frame with his left hand. He stares to the right of the camera. Behind the beekeeping equipment and figure is a house and trees, which take up the majority of the upper half of the print. The print is framed by a gray matte that says "R.J. Dillion Cambridge, N.Y."
