A group of men stand along the bank of a river, watching another group of men on the river. The men on the river are standing on what appears to be crude rafts, many hold long poles. All are fully clothed although their feet are right at the surface of the water. Those on the bank stand watching many with their hands on their hips. Most wear jackets, or long sleeves with hats. One man stands wrapped in a blanket. There is bridge and small building in the background.
